Rachel is an autistic woman who has served as a board member for many organizations that have impacted the lives of families everywhere. Now she is the executive director of Ability Beyond Disabilities Inc. a 501 c 3 nonprofit that strives to help autistic people and their families get the services and basic things that they need. Apart from that, Rachel is an accomplished writer, singer, and model. She's sung the national anthem at Madison Square Garden twice, traveled to the Czech Republic to train autism therapists and tell her story, and she's also spoken at the United Nations for World Autism Day to talk about technology and how it's helpful to those with disabilities.
